Graines de Paix Geneva Switzerland

Our vision:

Generations of children and young people who are resolutely attentive to human beings, to living things and to the planet and who are involved together for the future of the world.

Our mission: Transform education so that it integrates success, fulfillment, and prevention of violence and peace (school, societal, with nature) for all.

Our goals: Contribute to the emergence of new ways of teaching that can meet both current educational and societal needs. Develop the skills, postures and practices of education stakeholders and parents in such a way that they promote the success and fulfillment of all children, the prevention of violence and radicalization, and the culture of peace. Develop the life skills and reflective approach of children and young people necessary for academic success, fulfillment, prevention of violence and the culture of peace.

Our means: An innovative pedagogical approach that promotes the academic achievement of each student while helping them grow: inviting a positive, rewarding, caring and firm posture, promoting their psychological security and well-being while setting the framework; encouraging interaction between students themselves through learning in small groups, in order to develop listening, dialogue, collaboration and mutual aid, with reciprocal consideration, these learnings being the foundations of harmony in the classroom and in society; using experiential activities between students that allow them to develop their emotional skills and to move, followed by reflective moments in order to connect the learnings with their daily lives and with various societal issues, and thus bring meaning to the students.

21 September: Day of Peace: Action Needed!

21 September is the United Nations designated International Peace Day, set out in 1981 by a UN General Assembly resolution as being a day close to the start of the General Assembly. The Day is devoted to creating a culture of peace through dialogue in a spirit of mutual understanding and a consciousness of the unity of humanity. As the psychoanalyst Erick Fromm wrote "I believe that the One World which is emerging can come into existence only if a new man comes into being - a man who has emerged from the archaic ties of blood and soil, who feels himself to be a Citizen of the World, whose loyalty is to the human race and to life."

This year 21 September is one of the two Action Days of the Summit for the Future being held at the U.N. in New York. We are all aware that in many parts of the world there is armed conflict, political rivalries and growing tensions. The current heavily State-centric approaches to world politics hampers the effectiveness of the United Nations and its Specialized Agencies.

In these times of insecurity when many people feel uncertain about the future, when anxieties and fears are promoted and then exploited by political populists, old-fashioned nationalists and religious fundamentalists, we need to present a positive vision and to build bridges of understanding over the current divides of nationalism, ethnicity and social classes.

Today, the revolutionary character of our times is recognized by many observers. Those who live in the midst of swift social change confront the upheaval of their way of life. We are entering a period of change for which there are no blueprints.

Therefore, it is essential that we learn to work together. We celebrate our similarities rather than our differences. Thus on this Day of Peace, we are called to new levels of creativity and constructive action.

Silvina Mariana Freccero Argentina

On the occasion of the International Day of Peace, I would like to take this opportunity to greet you and express my sincere gratitude for your leadership and commitment to promoting peace in our community and beyond. As a Peace Ambassador of the Cercle Universel in France-Switzerland, I feel honored and committed to a responsible fight for peace.

From "Selfie for Peace", I propose a project that seeks to encourage global participation through the exchange of selfies on Instagram, in order to promote peace and unity.

This project is formally registered with the National Institute of Industrial Property (INPI) of Argentina and benefits from the exclusive rights granted by the current regulations. "Selfie por la paz" seeks to inspire people to unite around the cause of peace and solidarity.

This project not only highlights the importance of peace in our society, but also creates a space for all of us to contribute actively and creatively, recognizing ourselves as agents of peace.

Your support and dedication are essential to the success of initiatives like this, and together we can continue to build a world where peace is the norm and not the exception. I extend to you a cordial greeting and my best wishes for peace.

The Society of Poets and Artists of Cameroon (SPAC) through the project "House of Poetry in Cameroon" aims to bring balance to this essentially fluctuating environment where illiteracy, incivility, the collapse of cultural, ethical and solidarity values have made their nest.

The SPAC, aware of this plural identity unfortunately in the process of disappearing, wishes to contribute effectively with all the good wills wishing to work for development through poetry and literature. In Africa, young people are among the largest fringe of the population, however this youth has very little or no interest in literature in general and poetry in particular, partly due to the lack of frameworks to express themselves.

There are of course rudimentary football pitches! It is to get them interested in literature and specifically in poetry, to bring them closer to this other reality that humanizes man that SPAC is investing in creating or even merging synergies of action to set up platforms for sharing, exchanges and meetings.

In addition, the school population constitutes an important breeding ground in which the rooting of a literary and poetic culture can strengthen National Education, because poetry is a vector of positive values and contributes to strengthening ties, and to maintaining the torch of peace in these very troubled times, particularly in Africa.

By observing carefully around us, we realized that some continents have been able not only to create an environment favorable to developing the spirit of creativity, initiative, responsibility, awakening among their populations but also to spread a real culture of the book.

The "House of Poetry in Cameroon" project will therefore offer a space for intergenerational meetings, encouragement and promotion of talents.

Elias Deis Palestine

Executive Director Holy Land Trust

Yesterday, we gathered at Mary Dotty Park, a space owned by the Bethlehem Municipality, for a day filled with hope, healing, and joy. Over 150 children aged 3-10 from Bethlehem, primarily from the Sunday School in Bet Sahour, joined us for a day of fun and expression.

As the children arrived, their faces lit up with excitement, eager to play, run, and express joy. They were treated to a captivating theatre play by Mr. Ok Theater, which transported them to a world of imagination and wonder, offering a moment of respite from the harsh realities they have experienced.

Art therapy played a central role in our event, allowing the children to express their emotions and experiences through creativity. Through painting Easter eggs and faces, they were able to channel their feelings of fear, uncertainty, and hope, transforming them into beautiful works of art. This therapeutic approach not only provides a means of expression but also promotes healing and resilience in the face of adversity.

At Holy Land Trust, we believe in the power of art and creativity to transform trauma into hope. By providing a space for children to play, run, and express joy, we are helping them cope with the effects of war and conflict, fostering a sense of hope and resilience for the future.

As we reflect on the scenes of laughter, creativity, and healing at yesterday's event, we are reminded of the resilience of the children of Bethlehem. Despite the challenges they face, they continue to inspire us with their strength and courage.

We would like to extend a heartfelt thank to the Levant Ministries who sponsored the event and to all of you who always supports Holy Land Trust and believes in our work. Your generosity enables us to continue providing vital support to children and families in need, transforming trauma into hope

With warm regards.

Piotr Zbigniew Poland

He is a Polish poet, author and composer who has been associated with Poznan all his life. He is the author of works for all age groups and the International Ambassador of Peace. In 1983, he wrote two songs for KKS Lech on the occasion of the double crown of the Polish champion and the winner of the Polish Super Cup. "To the heart" and "Hey Rail wayorz".

These works were performed during a break in the match at the Stadium at ul. Bulgarian in Poznan by the military unit complex in Biedrusek under the direction of Mr. Paweo Lomiski. He is also the initiator of cultural events in the country and abroad.

His important initiatives are the International Festival of Composers and Authors 60 and Over with the Silver Pegasus Laurel in Poznan and meetings with culture and art in the family alloy gardens. In addition, he created the SAPS Association of Artists and Writers, operating on the Internet for world peace, environmental protection and care for a man, especially the sick, economically weak and often abandoned even by loved ones.

Jubilee builds ideas of equality, unity and love of neighbor, both with a social attitude, commitment to the development of creativity in the Polish language and care for the love of the mother tongue. He enjoys great recognition among people of culture and arts around the world, repeatedly awarded with the titles of Dr. Honoris Causa and international awards.

At this moment, there is no corner of the world without trauma, conflicts and problems. And we live in a very, very conflictual country.

Hence our delay in responding to your laudatory concepts that honor us and force us to redouble everything. Efforts to achieve a minimum context of peace, that is, humans and other species can enjoy life in an ecologically healthy world, a planet of intercultural fraternity, camaraderie and brotherhood where death is a product of the natural biological process of human life.

All divergences are resolved at the table of peace, fraternity of races and mutual respect, that is, a civilized, fraternal and humanist world and this is currently a utopia and therefore we cannot stop giving up for a moment on awareness, on awareness. as best we can..

For this reason, we appreciate your message, the materials of the ambassadors that excite you generate adrenaline and we reaffirm once again that collaborating with you honors us and makes us more human day by day.

Thank you for your words. . They are sincerely moving. On behalf of all the members of the CCSFS receive our respectful, fraternal and grateful greetings

Ernesto Kahan Israëi

Prof. Kahan is a passionate man who has spent his life striving to make an impact on human society. A fervent humanist, he served as Vice President of Doctors International for the Prevention of Nuclear War and excitedly shared their success when the organization was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1985. Since then, he has held some of the highest positions in the Health sectors in numerous countries, including Argentina and Israel. During these busy years he found that time to express his soul in poetry and the arts.

In this month's spotlight we seek inspirational words from the man we so admire. "Personally, as a professor of medicine and a poet, I believe that all doctors must be humanists and promote humanism and peace," says Khan. "We must love deeply and generously all of mankind.

We must love and respect all humans, whether healthy or ill. We must learn more every day and add to our knowledge. We must participate responsibly, ethically and socially, in dialogues and proposals for a better, more worthy and safer life for the human race.

Health professionals, especially those who are obliged by the Hippocratic Oath must have a more comprehensive and ecological vision.

I see this also as a great challenge for modern medicine. Doctors must assume great responsibility for the prevention of a nuclear genocide and the survival of mankind and life on Earth. This is our medical duty!"
